

Talking about death with my Grandma:

If more people believed in reincarnation they wouldn't be so sad about death.

If someone died and they were bad they would just be reincarnated here.

So it's like they never left. I mean they might come back as a fly and if you kill the fly you would kill them again...

...wait, what time is my soap opera on?

